There is nothing more important to an individual, or a community, than health. The quality of life one lives is dependent on one's health. Although not always that obvious, the same is true for a community. It follows from that simple fact that we are all, as individuals, responsible for the health of our community. Our freedom as individuals is actually enhanced by maintaining our health. Likewise, freely prospering as a community is dependent on a healthy citizenry. Those who argue for the "freedom" not to wear masks are actually arguing for the right to be irresponsible toward their community, thereby limiting its ability, and that of its citizens, to prosper freely, both as individuals and as a community. Mandate masks!
